Do you have too many bedrooms?

From 1st April 2013 the Welfare Reform Act comes into force. As part of the Act, the Government will reduce the level of Housing Benefit you receive if you are under occupying your home. This means if you are of working age and live in a home that is too big for you, your Housing Benefit may not cover all of your rent.

If you think you will be affected by the Housing Benefit cut you can downsize to a smaller home. Moving house to a new property with the right number of bedrooms for you means you won't be affected by the cut. HomeSwapper can help you find a swap with someone who needs somewhere bigger to live.

You'll find lots of stories from happy home swappers on our website. So if you're thinking of moving home, downsizing or upsizing, make your first move now go to...
